School employee sues, says rights were violated

Campbell claims Mitchell let her go despite seniority, tried to prevent her from receiving unemployment

By Ben Carlson
News staff

An instructional assistant is suing Superintendent Sheila Mitchell and the Anderson County Board of Education in federal court, claiming that her rights were violated when she lost her job at the end of the 2010-11 school year.

Kathy Campbell, of 1077 Indian Trail, Lawrenceburg, claims that other classified employees with less seniority were able to keep their jobs, a violation of state statutes and board policy. She also claims her rights were violated under the 5th and 14th amendments of the Constitution.

The school district, in its response to Campbell's lawsuit, denies the allegation.

Campbell was notified by letter in May of 2011 that, due to a reduction in workforce, her position with the school was being terminated after 11 years of employment, according to documents on file in federal court.

Mitchell

Later that month, Campbell hired an attorney and argued that others with less seniority were retained, including two people who had no prior experience at the high school, where Campbell worked.

Campbell filed her lawsuit in February despite what she claims was an offer from Superintendent Sheila Mitchell to return to work as a cafeteria cook, and another offer to return to work as an instructional assistant, which Campbell subsequently accepted.

June 1 marks 50th anniversary for five Lawrenceburg couples

By Meaghan Downs | News staff

Five Anderson County couples share more than mutual friends and the same high school memories.

All 10 men and women also share the same wedding anniversary — June 1, 1962.

Although the couples will celebrate 50 years of marriage next month, none of them have the same story of what they expected marriage to be like or what future newlyweds can anticipate marriage to hold for them.

Turn to pages A2-3, to learn how they met, fell in love and have managed to stay in love 50 years after they said, "I do."

Five things you didn't know

1. Most were classmates at Anderson County High School. Ronnie Thornberry, Suzanne Casey, Ed and Pat Sweazy and Mary Jane McAnly graduated in 1961. Peggy Perry and Shirlane (Stratton) Thornberry graduated in 1962.
2. Three of the five couples honeymooned in Cumberland Falls, in 1962.
3. Several of them worked at Square D, an electrical manufacturing company in Lexington, at the time they were married: Bobby McAnly, Ed and Pat Sweazy, Raymond Casey and Ronnie Thornberry.
4. Three of the five couples still live in Anderson County. Ed and Pat Sweazy live in Harrodsburg and Raymond and Suzanne Casey live in Frankfort.
5. Many of the couples ran into one another on the way to or during their honeymoons.

Couples share loves stories, offer advice as anniversaries approach

RAYMOND AND SUZANNE CASEY

Raymond Casey, a Western High graduate, knew he wanted to marry his wife, Suzanne, after reading her love letters.

Raymond was in Army at the time, and collected a shoebox full of letters from his Anderson County High girlfriend, sent from September 1961 through January 1962.

"They were so nice," Raymond said, adding that the letters were what convinced him to ask Suzanne to marry him. "They would make a nice book."

He pulled the letters out for the first time since the '60s last winter, and plans to re-read them again now that the couple is coming upon their 50th wedding anniversary.

"Make myself blush all over again," Suzanne, formerly known as Wanda Stevens, said.

The 19-year-old Suzanne and 23-year-old Raymond had a small wedding at Alton Baptist Church. Suzanne, who was best friends with Mary Jane McAnly throughout high school and another member of the Class of 1961, said she knew the McAnlys and Ed and Pat Sweazy were also getting married on June 1.

"We were kind of disappointed we weren't going to be at each other's wedding," Suzanne said of Mary Jane.

Advice from the Caseys

Raymond Casey: "I think a good marriage is definitely built on respect and love for each other."

Suzanne (Wanda Stevens) Casey: "And compromise. You're not going to agree 100 percent of the time."

After the wedding, the couple started planning on building their first house together. The Caseys said they have never bought a house that they didn't somehow build or add on.

"I've always had a feeling you can do anything if you put yourself to it," Raymond said.

Suzanne, who said she's always been fascinated with house design, said she used to draw housing plans in her spare time and was often the unofficial contractor on site.

But Suzanne was in the hospital with her first son, Chris, when the Caseys decided to move into their first home in 1964.

"Pregnant women don't do too much hammering," Suzanne said with a laugh.

Although building projects aren't piling up at the moment, the Caseys are always on the go.

Suzanne is an artist, and her still-life paintings can be found on display throughout her Frankfort home, and a large weaving loom has a home in the basement. She's currently taking Spanish classes at Kentucky State University, planning to use her newfound proficiency in the language on the couple's upcoming anniversary trip to Puerto Rico.

Now retired, Raymond is an avid golfer, an "all-consuming" hobby Suzanne introduced to him about 48 years ago.

Raymond and Suzanne Casey display a photo from their wedding day 50 years ago June 1.

"I think, for me, he's ideal," Suzanne said of Raymond. "I don't think I could have invented anyone better suited to me, who has my values."

Raymond agreed.

"I think we were real compatible," he said. "We think we loved each other and knew each other well enough that we stayed together for 50 years."

BOBBY AND MARY JANE MCANLY

Without First Christian Church, there wouldn't be a Mary Jane and Robert "Bobby" McAnly.

It's where the Lawrenceburg couple first met — while with other dates — on a church hayride. Mary Jane was 13 and Robert was 15, and both said they were too immature to know what they had.

"We had puppy love, I guess you could say," Bobby said.

After Mary Jane and Bobby broke up, (Mary Jane said she told her mother she hated Bobby and would never go back out with him), Bobby gave his wife a fateful ride home from a church group event.

"If he hadn't stopped and given me that ride," Mary Jane said ... "You probably wouldn't be here talking to us today," Bobby said.

They went the long way home and one year later, the McAnlys got married at First Christian in front of hundreds of friends and family.

Their daughter took the same walk down the church aisle on her wedding day.

"The church has really been a big part of our life because that's where we met," Mary Jane said.

Both remember the hayride, but can't really recall what attracted them to each other.

"I don't know, we just clicked," Mary Jane said.

She also can't really remember how she felt on her wedding day, other than being really nervous, but Bobby said he remembers exactly what he did the day he got married.

He took off work from Square D manufacturing company. Cashed his check. Hid his '58 Chevy convertible from mischievous wedding goers by the T.B. Ripy House.

"I was very proud of my car; it was a classic car," Bobby said.

Once they got married, Mary Jane said as an 18-year-old only child, she had to learn everything, adding that the first six months of marriage were hard for her.

"I didn't know how to do anything," she said, laughing. "I knew how to fix brownies and Swiss steak; I learned that in Home Economics."

The thing Bobby said he had to learn, as a 20-year-old newlywed, was to "settle down."

It took him 20 years to learn that, Mary Jane said jokingly.

"He was a little rebel back then, but not anymore," Mary Jane said.

A 16-year-old Bobby once rode his Harley motorcycle across the Tyrone railroad trestle. He had one passenger clinging to him on the back of the bike, but it was definitely not Mary Jane, she said.

Because one of the things Mary Jane said she's learned in 50 years of marriage: if you want to change somebody, you cannot do it.

"Marriage is give and take, and it cannot work if we can't do both," Mary Jane said.

Bobby agreed.

"You have to be willing to give," he said.

They may not be hitting the open road on a motorcycle any more, but travel (along with caring for grandkids and attending their basketball games) has always been a large part of the McAnly's lives.

"The adventure," Mary Jane said of what she enjoys about traveling, "seeing and doing new things."

The couple traveled to 50 states in 50 years, beginning with the honeymoon trip to Daytona Beach, Fla. It was on their way to Florida that they met up with Pat and Ed Sweazy in Gatlinburg, Tenn.

Bobby and Mary Jane have been to Europe and the Mediterranean. They've been on 29 cruises, and are still searching for a special cruise destination to celebrate their 50th anniversary.

"And doing it together," Mary Jane said about her travels with her husband. "It wouldn't be any fun if we weren't doing it together."

Advice from the McAnly's

Mary Jane on the dating process: "I think you need to go out with a lot of different boys or a lot of different girls ... because how do you know that's the one? You need to see what it is you really want."

BOBBY AND PEGGY PERRY

Bobby and Peggy Perry of Lawrenceburg tend their own small farm down the road from their home on Alton Station Road, but they also have a zoo.

Technically, they help purchase, feed and house animals for Alton Christian Church's annual Christmas nativity and side petting zoo.

In the past, they've donated a camel, llamas, pgymuy goats and even a wallaby.

Bobby has always been an animal lover, Peggy said.

"He loves animals, and I guess I do too," she said.

When the couple first married in 1962, they farmed together. They still farm, and even cut their own beef.

"When we set tobacco, she (Peggy) was on the tobacco setter like any other hired hand," Bobby said.

But finances were tight. They spent their honeymoon night in the hospital by the side of Peggy's sick grandfather, with whom she was very close.

Peggy married Bobby a few weeks after graduating high school, and Bobby said back then, farmers traded and swapped labor with each other.

"That's the way it was with most of your small farmers," Bobby said. "Back then, people helped each other out."

He remembers his first house payment, a $49 bill. Almost a week's worth of wages at that time.

"We were like all young couples, struggling to keep our heads above water," Bobby Perry said.

The Perrys credit their faith and God for helping them get through.

"We'd never made it this long without it (faith)," Bobby said.

Bobby and Peggy Perry plan on having a reception, hosted by their daughter, at Alton Christian Church on June 2 from 2-4 p.m., requesting that guests do not bring gifts.

"I've got enough collections," Peggy said with a laugh.

And anyway, Bobby said, they already have everything they really want or need.

"We were just, I guess you could say, plain old country folks," Bobby said. "I have no desire to be fancy about anything."

Advice from the Perrys

Peggy Perry: "You always put God first."

Bobby Perry: "We'd never made it this long without it [faith]."

Thornberrys, Sweazys share secrets of their happy, loving marriages

RONNIE AND SHIRLANE THORNBERRY

Before Shirlane Stratton and Ronnie Thornberry tied the knot June 1, 1962 at Ezra Sparrow's home, they had never traveled farther than Lexington.

So of course, while traveling to Cumberland Falls for their honeymoon, they got lost.

"We were pretty much naïve," Ronnie said. "Back then, you would have called us green as a gourd."

Shirlane, who had just graduated from high school in May 1962, said her father was worried too, and even gave her money to try to delay the marriage, something she told her husband only a few years ago.

"'Now, if you change your mind, you can use this money to call,'" Shirlane recalled her father saying.

"She always been really conservative, she probably still has that money," Ronnie said jokingly.

Ronnie's first impression of his future wife, then a high school sophomore, wasn't that she was conservative with her finances.

"She was just really cute," he said. "I didn't know her really well."

"You had broke up with another girl," Shirlane added. "I remember that part."

She also recalled Ronnie's signature, cool haircut — a flat top haircut with peroxide-dyed tips.

"Oh yeah, I was in love with him," Shirlane said of Ronnie, who was a high school junior. "I used to stand in the hallway and watch him get into his locker."

They went on their first date to a drive-in movie together, and by Christmas, were engaged.

After they got married, Ronnie stayed on with Square D for another 45 years, later going on to vocational school for mechanical drawing and a tool and die apprenticeship with the company. Shirlane stayed at home until her youngest daughter was in high school, and then began work at Anderson Public Library for more than 24 years.

As a young married couple, money was tight in the Thornberry household.

Everything, down to every meal, was planned out, Shirlane and Ronnie said, even the twice a week dinners at their in-laws' homes.

"They can't see starting like we've started and building up," Shirlane said of many young married couples today. "And we wanted to do it. To me, the times we did without were the good times. We had to work together. We wanted to do it ourselves, and I think that's what got us through."

Nowadays, life is about their three children and grandchildren, most of whom still live in the area.

"We're more or less on call all the time," Shirlane said. "I can't hardly go off and leave the kids and the grandkids. Some people go and stay off for months. I don't think I can do that."

Ronnie, who Shirlane describes as an "optimist," said he feels blessed and pretty fortunate for the life they've led.

"We've come through pretty good," Ronnie said.

Advice from the Thornberrys

Ronnie Thornberry: "There's been a lot of ups and downs, but when my mind thinks about that, the good things come to the top pretty quick."

ED AND PAT SWEAZY

The Sweazy's wedding day ended with a bang.

After getting married at Gethsemane Baptist Church in Louisville, Ed and Pat Sweazy decided to spend their wedding night at a small cottage in Renfro Valley before heading to their honeymoon destination — Cumberland Falls.

Later, they heard a woman's screams.

"We started getting ready for bed, and we heard this woman screaming, 'Somebody help me!', Ed said.

Ed walked into the scene to learn that one man had shot another.

The police arrived later, took Ed and Pat's information in case Ed had to testify later on, and the couple went back to their own cottage.

But by 4 a.m., they decided to leave and make their way to Cumberland Falls.

"We'll never forget our honeymoon night," Ed said with a laugh.

Pat and Ed Sweazy will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary June 1.

Ed and Pat, both 1961 Anderson High graduates and former employees of Square D, often were seated alphabetically and were good friends throughout high school.

They didn't start dating until after school, when Ed invited her to a group outing. Pat said she arrived, and Ed was the only one there, though Ed said he didn't plan it that way.

"We were just buddies," Pat said, adding that they used to talk about who the other person was dating.

But being friends first is important, they both said.

"We've fought for 50 years. I guess we'll keep fighting for another 50 years," Ed said. "I don't remember the marriage thing being so important as being together."

Now living in Harrodsburg, the couple frequently socializes with friends and said "the need to laugh" is important.

"The 50 years seem like they've gone by really quick," Ed said. "We've had our disagreements, but we're adult enough to talk it out."

Pat has a piece of artwork hanging in her bathroom that says the same thing.

"'Never go to bed mad,'" she quoted, "'Stay up and fight.' There's a lot of truth to that.'"

Advice from the Sweazys

Ed Sweazy: "Communication. Talk. Get each others' feelings.

Pat Sweazy: "I even discuss grocery shopping."

Keeping dry eye impossible during Memorial Day ceremony

Ben Carlson
Publisher

It happens every Memorial Day.

Camera in hand, I go to the ceremony at the Healing Field bound and determined not to get misty eyed during the service.

After all, I'm a working, impartial journalist there to report and photograph, not participate.

Then someone says or does something that gets me going, my throat gets a lump and I have to pretend I have a speck of dirt in my eye.

This year was no different. I was fine for a while, snapping photos of praying and saluting veterans and their families while trying not to detract from the ceremony.

My resolve held firm through opening remarks, prayers and even a remarkably poignant message from Legion Department Commander Doug Farley, whose voice cracked time and again as he spoke.

"Remembering our fallen heroes once a year is not enough," Farley said. "Their widows, children and parents remember them every day."

With a son-in-law who has twice deployed to the Middle East and an Air Force daughter itching to go (please, God, don't let that happen), that comment struck home, but my resolve stayed strong.

Then it happened. As the ceremony came to a close, the sad and hopefully soon unnecessary practice began of raising flags in the Healing Field to honor Kentuckians killed in the war on terrorism since last Memorial Day.

It's hard enough to keep dry eyes during that, but downright impossible (for me, at least) when the parents of some of those soldiers are the ones raising the flags.

Included in Sunday's ceremony were Mike and Laura Summers, Mount Olivet residents there to raise a flag for their son, Jeremy, who was killed last July in Afghanistan.

Words cannot describe how dignified, stoic and classy they were while doing what can only be described as indescribable.

They hoisted their son's flag, saluted, thanked the men from Legion Post 7 in Frankfort who assisted and stood aside as too many other flags were raised.

During taps, the Summers faced the lonely bugle music echoing across the Healing Field, their hands clasped together and slightly behind them. One may have mistaken them for a middle-aged couple in love and holding hands in the park, if the circumstances weren't remarkably different.

When it was over, the Summers again saluted their fallen son's permanent memorial and drove away, returning to the home that will never again be visited by a son who paid the ultimate sacrifice for his nation.

From my vantage point, I saw neither of them shed a tear — my guess is that since last July they have probably shed all the tears parents could possibly have to shed.

So try as I might to do otherwise, I shed one for them.

Auxiliary members Betty Butler, left, and Nettie Halvorson read the names of local soldiers who have died defending America's freedom.

Speaking of tears, an untold number have been shed right here in Anderson County for the following men who died during the war to end all wars, and those that followed.

Again this year their names were read during Sunday's Memorial Day ceremony, and appear here as a tribute to their sacrifice.

The only good thing about this list is that it hasn't grown since last May. Let's all pray that God keeps it that way in the year to come.

Authors abound in Lawrenceburg

Meaghan Downs
Staff writer

The only thing that comes close to giving birth is writing.

And I'm not the only one who thinks so.

Anyone who writes — even just by texting or sending e-mails — understands how difficult it can be to find the right word.

I once spent three weeks trying to remember the word "efficacy."

"Dilapidated" will forever haunt me as the word that vanquished me in the third round of the regional spelling bee.

I've never published a novel, like some of the following Lawrenceburg residents have, but I don't think I'm too off base when it comes to finding the right metaphor for the writing process.

"Each book is like giving birth to a child," local writer and teacher Jennifer Johnson said. "It's like saying if I like my first daughter or my second daughter or third daughter."

Johnson, a seventh grade language arts teacher at Anderson Middle School, received two publishing contracts only two days after graduating from college.

"Thirteen years ago was when I decided I really wanted to start writing," Johnson, who has published 12 books as of press time, said. Johnson's next novel, "A Wedding Song," will be available online and in bookstores in June, and she will be holding a book signing at Joseph-Beth bookstore in Lexington.

A fan of the "Twilight" and "Hunger Games" series, Johnson said she enjoys love triangles, and often writes that kind of tension into her novels.

But ultimately for her, writing and publishing Christian fiction is about encouraging her readers by blending love stories and faith.

"I only want to write stories because I feel like my only purpose is to encourage Christian women," she said. "And romance is my thing. I've loved romance since I was born."

Former Lawrenceburg resident Holly Brown Marsh, who writes under the pen name of Taryn Raye, also loves romance.

"Well, I grew up reading Harlequin and Silhouette, and there's something nice about knowing someone's going to have a happy ending," Marsh, who currently lives in Adolphus said. "But truthfully, I consider what I write stories of the heart. I feel that what I write reaches the heart. Or I hope it does."

Jennifer Johnson, a Christian romance fiction novelist, poses in her middle school classroom with some of her published novels.

Her first soon-to-be published novel, "Castaway Hearts," focuses on historical romance. But Marsh has written about 11 other manuscripts, some emphasizing the work of women or family saga.

To her, she said, love is powerful.

And so was the encouragement of her mother, Patricia Brown, to give Marsh the courage to send her book to a publisher.

"'You hit send or I'm never going to see a book in print from you in my lifetime,'" Marsh recalled her mother saying.

Writing can be lonely, frustrating and exhausting. It takes courage and dedicated.

But the endgame, for anyone who writes, is to find universality.

The goal, for both Johnson and Marsh, is to connect with their readers in some small way.

And that's all any writer can ever hope for.

"I think the thing I hope to achieve as a writer is that readers enjoy my books and it's something that touches them, something common to all of us," Marsh said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Willing to pay for more sports

To the editor:

I read sports editor's column in last week's paper about his concern for the expansion of Kentucky High School Athletic Association sports.

The column leaves the reader thinking the KHSAA is on a tear, adding new sports right and left.

In fact, until this year the KHSAA has not sanctioned a new sport for member schools since 1978. It has in fact been a long drought when it comes to adding popular and accessible sports in high school athletics.

I think it is terrific that new sports that don't require one to be the fastest, tallest, strongest or prettiest are being made available to students. I especially like the fact that life sports are being added that students can take with them, beyond the armchair, into adulthood.

I hope and expect the same people who pay for the old standbys also pay for young people to enjoy these new sports.

That would be me, Mr. Herndon, and all the rest of us who pay property and other taxes.

Plants rarely stink, but they do smell

Cheryl Steenerson
Columnist

I'm not a big fan of turtles right now. In one night, some hard-shelled slow poke chopped down 60 of my tomato plants. I didn't say anything out loud when I saw them, but I was thinking about all my relatives who like turtle soup.

OK, so I have plenty more plants, but these were already planted, dang it.

I researched methods to deter turtles and found out a sprinkling of diatomaceous earth around the plant will do the trick. Until then, I'm keeping them dusted with baby powder.

I just read a fascinating article about plants. They smell. No, they don't have noses, but they can detect chemicals in the air that tells them all kinds of things. My first thought was question how crazy my plants get when I spray them with my Japanese beetle juice.

Smells have a chemical signature and that's what we really smell. The plants have the same ability to pick up on those chemicals. The article described a vining weed that smells a tomato plant and leans over to attach itself to it.

They did all kinds of experiments and the vine went for the tomato over a wheat plant every time. They even put them in two different boxes with a tube attached between them so air could flow. Pretty cool, huh?

Different plants give off different odors, thereby attracting, repelling or ignoring each other. It's the chemicals, (pheromones) that guide them. The book is called, "What a Plant Knows: A Field Guide to the Senses," by Daniel Chamovitz. I can't wait to read it.

June is just two days away and Mother Nature has made our to-do list. It's time to dig and divide your iris. When you replant an iris you need to leave a top portion of the root above ground. Leave the leaves, too. The leaves help the plant store energy for next year's blooming, so no pruning until this fall.

If the frost didn't hit your fruit trees, you should take a good look at your fruit and start thinning developing fruit from branches that are too crowded. You'll have bigger and healthier fruit to harvest.

Take a look at your other trees, too. You may just find a bagworm or two. Pick them off and dispose in a trash bag.

It's time to fertilize acid loving plants, like azaleas, with a fertilizer for high acid plants. You get prettier and longer lasting blooms.

Any plant that puts on a big display needs to be rewarded. They've used up a lot of nutrients and would really appreciate some extra food. Pick a fertilizer with the last two numbers bigger than the first, like 5-10-10.

Once your strawberry plants finish producing you can go ahead and start renovating the patch.

You can start new plants by leaning a runner over to a new row and burying the tip into the ground.

In a week or two, it should be rooted and you can snip it from the mother plant.

You can also dig up your plants to move them, but making new ones will keep them producing longer and with a bigger harvest. Do not fertilize them. Just use good soil and give them some wood ashes this winter.

Now, the dogs are barking, because they know it's time to head for the garden and get to work. I'm hoping they can find a turtle or two for me to relocate. How far away is Texas?

Happy growing.

Cleaning, playing will help burn unwanted calories

Joan Martin
Guest columnist

It's time to weed the garden.

I like being outdoors but weeding isn't my favorite activity. I'd rather be walking or hiking somewhere else. At least I can count it as part of my daily physical activity.

So I don't have to walk three miles every day to stay physically active. Here are some activities that you may have on your "to-do" list and approximately how many calories you will burn while you are doing them.

The following list of activities and calories burned is for a person that weighs approximately 175 pounds who is doing the activity for 30 minutes.

If you weigh more than that, you will burn a few more calories.

If you weigh less than 175, you will burn a few less in the same time frame.

Cleaning

Mopping – 146 calories
Scrubbing floors – 159 calories
Sweeping – 167 calories

Gardening and outside work

Watering lawn or garden – 63 calories
Fertilizing yard – 104 calories
Weeding – 167 calories
Gardening – 188 calories
Trimming shrubs by hand – 188 calories
Laying sod – 209 calories
Cleaning gutters – 209 calories
Mowing lawn (walk behind power mower) – 230 calories
Painting (outside or inside the home) – 209 calories

Sports and games

Golfing, no motorized cart – 146 calories
Playing badminton – 188 calories
Playing baseball or softball – 209 calories
Dancing – 209 calories
Throwing Frisbee – 125 calories
Jumping on trampoline – 146 calories
Playing singles tennis – 334 calories
Playing basketball – 240 calories

Certainly, this is a great time of year to tackle some of those chores around the house. It is just an added benefit that you are being physically active and burning calories.

Difficult decisions help maintain fiscally stable school budget

Sheila Mitchell
Superintendent

Every year, just a few months after a new school year begins, the Anderson County Board of Education begins its financial planning for the next school year.

In the fall, the district begins planning by making projections for student enrollment and average daily attendance (ADA).

ADA is the foundation for each districts' SEEK funding, as public school districts receive a flat rate per student based on ADA, not enrollment.

For 2012-13 the rate, will revert back to 2008 levels at $3,833 per student in ADA; this amount is less than the previous year.

These preliminary projections and state SEEK estimates are used to prepare the first budget of the planning cycle, called the draft budget, which is to be reviewed by the board by Jan. 31 of each year. This cycle of the budget is not required to be submitted to the Kentucky Department of Education (KDE).

The next step in the process is to review the board's staffing for any changes that might need to be made. This is based upon projected student enrollment for the next year for each school to allocate teaching staff, as well as principals, librarians, counselors and classified staff such as custodians and clerical staff.

The staffing allocations are based on recommendations by KDE and board policy.

Salaries and benefits for staff make up the majority of the district's budget, approximately 82 percent of the general fund budget in the tentative budget that was presented to the board May 21.

Unfortunately, this means that due to changes in school populations and reductions in state and federal funding, it is sometimes necessary to make staffing reductions to maintain a balanced budget.

Last year the board and I made tough choices to freeze salaries and reduce staffing in order to ensure that the budget contained a higher than required state 2 percent contingency.

Throughout the year spending has been closely monitored by my office, school board, superintendent and the finance officer.

With the continuous uncertainty and reductions in the state funding formula, the Anderson County Board of Education continues to remain committed to developing a fiscally stable and balanced budget, while maintaining instructional programs that are beneficial to the students of Anderson County.

The ending balance is projected to increase from the prior year's from 3.89 percent to 4.37 percent which falls between the state required 2 percent and the recommend 5 percent contingency balance.

Once the staffing is determined, the board is required to provide each school and site-based decision making council with an allocation for certified staff, classified staff and instructional fund allocation.

These allocations, along with any updated revenue projections for state SEEK funding, are used to prepare the next step in the budget cycle, the tentative budget. The tentative budget is the most crucial planning stage of the budget, as it is the final version that is approved before the new school year begins.

It is not the final budget for the upcoming school year, so changes are still possible. The tentative budget is required to be approved by the board and submitted to KDE for review by May 30 of each year.

The 2012-13 tentative budget was approved by the Anderson County Board of Education at a regular meeting held May 21. This budget shows a contingency balance of 4.37 percent higher than the state required 2 percent.

The final budget for the 2012-13 school year, called the working budget, is required to be approved by the board and submitted to KDE for review by Sept. 30 of each year, almost a month and a half after the start of the new school year. This is to make final revisions for the new tax rates that will be adopted in August, as well as to update for any staffing changes that may have taken place over the summer as employees resign or retire and new employees are hired.

The Anderson County Board of Education has made some difficult decisions over the past few years to be able to maintain a fiscally stable budget.

Where incoming annual revenues have equaled or exceeded annual recurring expenditures, including freezing salaries and reducing staff.

These efforts have helped increase the districts contingency saving account from 3.89 percent to 4.37 percent, which is above the state required 2 percent.

This has not always been easy, as state funding continues to decrease and state funding makes up approximately 56 percent of the general fund revenues. Local tax revenue in Anderson County makes up approximately 32 percent of general fund revenues. With the continuous uncertainty and reductions in the state funding formula, the Anderson County Board of Education continues to remain committed to developing a fiscally stable and balanced budget, while maintaining instructional programs that are beneficial to the students of Anderson County.

Sheila Mitchell is superintendent of the Anderson County school system.

From staff reports

A flag retirement ceremony conducted by Lawrenceburg Boy Scout Troop 37 is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, June 14, the Troop announced.

The ceremony will be conducted in front of the Veterans Wall of Honor, located in front of the Healing Field at the American Legion Park on Broadway, according to a news release

The ceremony is open to the public, and those who wish to retire flags that are worn, torn or no longer serviceable are asked to arrive by 6:30 p.m.

Flags can also be dropped off at Ace Hardware through June 13.

"Our flag stands as a monument of freedom for millions of Americans and others around the world, and when it becomes faded, torn or worn and no longer serviceable to represent our country, it should be retired and replaced," said Chris Anderson, senior patrol leader for Troop 37.

The ceremony marks the 96th anniversary of former president Woodrow Wilson's proclamation of a national Flag Day, according to a news release.

Police launch 'Click It or Ticket' enforcement campaign

From staff reports

The Lawrenceburg police department and the Anderson County sheriff's office are joining with other state and local law enforcement in the 2012 national "Click It or Ticket" campaign through June 3, according to a press release from the city police department.

"Too many drivers and passengers on the road at night are not wearing their seat belts, and it all too often ends in tragedy," Officer Nathan Doty said in the news release. "Our goal is to save more lives, so the Lawrenceburg police department will be out enforcing seat belt laws — day and night."

LAWSUIT

In all, she was out of work from May through October of 2011.

Earlier this month, federal Judge Edward B. Atkins ordered both sides to appear Aug. 27 for a settlement conference, during which both sides are to have their clients "fully authorized to negotiate and approve settlement."

Each side has until Aug. 20 to provide statements outlining their settlement positions.

A trial in federal court is scheduled to begin May 21, 2013 in Frankfort.

Campbell's attorney, J. Follace Fields II of the Lexington law firm of Brooks, McComb & Fields, said both sides spoke for an extended period of time, trying to reach agreement before the lawsuit was filed.

He said so far, that hasn't happened.

"This could be resolved," Fields said, "but at this junction the parties can't agree."

Fields explained that once classified employees such as Campbell exceed four consecutive years of employment, they cannot be "just let go" without grounds or a hearing. He said that during a reduction in workforce, the law requires them to be given preference, based on seniority.

When Campbell was let go, he said, she lost that four-year requirement.

"That's the main issue," he said. "She's no longer protected against a layoff in the spring."

A message to the school district's attorney has not been returned.

Campbell is seeking to recover lost wages and benefits, along with having her retirement service credit restored.

She is also seeking to recover attorney fees and "all other relief to which she may appear entitled."

The school board, in its response, asked for the lawsuit to be dismissed and its attorney costs be paid by Campbell.

Campbell claims that after having her position eliminated, Mitchell called her in June of 2011 and offered the cafeteria position. Campbell claims that Mitchell expressed doubts that she could physically perform the job "due to a recent medical procedure," then called the Kentucky Unemployment Office to "advise that Campbell's claim for unemployment benefits should be denied because she had just made Campbell a job offer."

In August of 2011, Mitchell again contacted Campbell and offered to bring her back as an instructional assistant, this time to care for a student who travels each day to the Kentucky School for the Deaf in Danville.

Campbell balked, saying that her original position required her to be able to lift only 50 pounds. Mitchell's offer, she said, would require her to lift the 65-pound student as well as carry the student's wheelchair up and down stairs.

Both, she claimed, "are duties well in excess of the official job requirements of the Anderson County Schools' adopted instructional assistant job description."

But in October, Campbell signed the job offer, which runs only through the end of the current school year and can only be renewed at Mitchell's discretion.

uled for 9 a.m. July 24.

Murphy, who lives in Florida, was charged last year and previously worked here in social services as a field worker charged with investigating child abuse.

Along with alleged sexual abuse, other charges include allegations of child neglect, parents using drugs while an infant and toddler were in their vehicle, and another allegation of abuse that, according to a parent, resulted in children "smearing feces all over the bathroom and themselves," and "acting out sexually against a young child visiting the [parent's] home."

The case, which involved incidents between 2006 and 2010, was prosecuted by the state attorney general's office.

Each felony count carries a sentence ranging from one to five years, and a fine ranging from $1,000 to $10,000, according to court documents.

The plea agreement did not mention Murphy being fined.

Tuesday's hearing marked only the second time Murphy has appeared in court. The first was when she entered an original plea of not guilty.

Murphy was allowed to turn herself in at the time of her arrest, and has not been jailed since that time.

Although she accepted the commonwealth's plea offer, Circuit Court Judge Charles Hickman can impose other sentence options on Murphy.

Play to relive radio's golden age during WWII

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

The Anderson County Community Theater is looking to rally the troops and entertain its audience during its upcoming production of "The 1940s Radio Hour," a play that takes place at radio station WOV in New York City during World War II.

Want to go?

When: June 8-10, June 15-17
Time: Curtains open at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, Sunday matinee is at 2 p.m.
Where: Anderson County Middle School
Cost: $7 for tickets at the door
For advance tickets, contact anyone on the cast or call director Rodney Handy at 502-604-3077.

Director Rodney Handy (who may also join in with the 16-piece live band as a musician) said the production begins with the cast setting up for the regular radio spot of the "Mutual Manhattan Variety Cavalcade" singing group.

"It's sort of a radio version of a play called 'Noises Off!' Handy said. "There's a lot of things going on, but there a lot of things that weave together."

Handy said although the theme of '40s radio may "be a stretch for the younger generation," the play will appeal to baby boomers and older.

Characters like Biffy, who's about to enter into the nursing corps; Wally the delivery boy, looking to break into show business; and Johnny Cantone, a bad-boy crooner who "smokes too much, drinks too much and doesn't know it," all attempt to reach their own personal goals while putting on a good radio show for the troops overseas.

Kenneth Drake, who plays Johnny Cantone in the production, said he's been involved with the Anderson County Community Theater group for the last four years.

His character Johnny — a "two-, three- and four-timer" Drake said — is similar to when he played Danny Zucko in "Grease."

But as a husband and father of three, he said, it's not his secret wish to play this kind of character.

"He really thinks highly of himself and hopes that everyone else does too," Drake said.

"He is a womanizer, he likes all the ladies, even the ladies in the audience."

The cast interacts with the audience, Handy said, treating them like an audience the radio show might have had.

"At that point, the audience becomes part of it," he said.

Can one be a Christian and never attend church?

First of all this question makes no sense when you understand that the church is made up of Christians. Jesus promised to have his church (his assembly, his people etc.) in Matthew 16:18 "… I will build my church …." It is also interesting that Luke wrote to Theophilus telling him that all the saved were in the church (Acts 2:47). Now how can one be a Christian without assembling with the very body that Jesus said belonged to Him. In fact, the Hebrew brethren were called upon to assemble to encourage each other in such assemblies (Hebrews 10:22-26).

In order to be a Christian one has to be baptized (immersed); so published in Acts 2:38; 1 Peter 3:21; Romans 6:3-4; Gal. 3:27. These Christians are commanded to band together with Elders and deacons (Philippians 1:1). You do not find people in the first century running around claiming to be Christians but not associated with a family (local church).

Someone might say, "I'm opposed to organized religion." I hate to hear that, because Christ died to establish (organize) his church (Ephesians 5:23-33); so in essence you are saying "I don't want to have anything to do with the Lord's church." It will be the church that Christ delivers up to God when the end comes (1 Cor. 15:24). You cannot separate the Christian and church, for they stand or fall together.

Student-athletes deserve better than 10:30 start

Remember that little phrase we often hear, then snicker?

Student-athlete.

When you hear someone representing a major college or the NCAA using that term, you had better be sure to notice that emphasis on the "student" half of the equation and forget that those student-athletes play weeknight games at 9:30 and are flown across the country, regardless of location, all for a good matchup in March Madness.

John Herndon
Sports editor

And, heaven forbid if you ever call out the hypocrisy and call those guys participating in sports at the highest level "players."

Hopefully, most of us recognize the absurdity even while we are addicted to Johnny C., Dickie V or Ricky P.

At least we can say, "At least we have the high schools!"

But after last Tuesday night, it is fair to wonder where we are headed.

In case you missed it, that night, Anderson County defeated Spencer County 4-0 in the semifinal round of the 30th District baseball tournament at Collins High School. That was really not a big surprise. Anderson had not lost to the Bears on the big diamond since 2009 and has now ended Spencer's season five of the last six years.

But the game ended at about 12:40 a.m. Wednesday morning.

I repeat, 12:40 a.m.

Anderson did not score four runs in the top of the 23rd inning to cause a game to end at that hour. The Bearcats were the home team and rode a stellar pitching performance from Steven Watts to dispatch of Spencer County in regulation.

The game, which was the lower-bracket semi-final, did not start until approximately 10:30 p.m.

Read that again: 10:30 p.m. On a school night.

What in the world were the people from the respective schools thinking? Why was it not postponed with the teams coming back the next night?

10:30 p.m. On. A. School. Night.

At least for Anderson County it was. Spencer's school year had already ended. Where the blame lies, I don't know.

It was also a night before final exams. With a game ending after 12:30, you have to figure kids did not get home until well after 1 a.m. Even though some parents told me the kids were able to come in at 9:30 the next morning and take finals with no penalty, was that enough to offset playing baseball until 12:40?

Some good people that were in charge certainly got caught in an unfortunate and unforeseen situation.

The reason for the late start was the upper-bracket semifinal that saw Shelby County defeat crosstown rival and tournament host Collins, 10-8 in 11 innings. Collins rallied from an 8-2 deficit with six runs in the bottom of the seventh to force the extra frames.

I had already worked the Anderson-Collins softball game, which went 10 innings itself, at Spencer County, grabbed a snack, stopped to help my Landmark colleagues at the Shelbyville Sentinel-News and still made it to the Collins campus with plenty of time to spare before the first pitch.

I had expected to get there about the fifth or sixth inning.

To be fair, I can understand the desire to go on and play. If I were involved, I would probably want to get the game in, too. In baseball tournament play, a postponement for any reason can give one team a big advantage in future games because of pitching rest rules. Even the most casual follower of high school baseball knows that.

Being someone who has been in this business 27 years, I also appreciate the difficulty that comes with scheduling baseball and softball tournaments juggling testing, graduations and the like. It is a phenomenon unique to the diamond.

Apparently, school officials from Anderson, Spencer and Collins discussed whether to play or postpone. And apparently, such a situation is not addressed in the Kentucky High School Athletic Association Handbook. One party involved told me they could not find a rule, nor was I able to locate a rule.

But there should be one.

8th grader wins gold, sets state record

Quick start propels Duncan in 300-meter hurdles

By John Herndon
Sports editor

As he neared the finish line in the 300-meter hurdle race, Connor Duncan knew he would be getting a gold medal at the state middle school track meet last Saturday.

He knew he had been fast, bursting out of the starting block and leading all the way. But it wasn't until a few seconds later that the magnitude of what the Anderson County Middle School eighth-grader had done began to sink in on the track at Dunbar High School in Lexington.

"The coaches said, 'You got it in 41 (seconds). I thought I had the state record," Duncan said.

His time of 41.85 seconds in the race was 1/10 of a second faster than North Oldham's Zack Evans, who set the previous mark in 2008.

Duncan was also just over a second faster than Derien Richardson of Lexington's Crawford Middle School.

Knowing he needed to shave about a half-second off his personal best of 42.37 to set the record. "I had trained all week and thought I could do it," Duncan said.

Duncan, who had just missed qualifying for the state high school meet two weeks earlier on the same track, got off to a blazing start, quickly building a lead of about two meters, then knowing it should hold coming off the turn.

Anderson County's Kaci Currens is greeted at home plate after belting a first-inning grand slam that propelled the Lady Bearcats to an 8-1 win over Simon Kenton in the Eighth Region Tournament opener Monday at South Oldham.

CRESTWOOD – As soon as Kaci Currens connected, it was a no-doubter.

The Anderson County eighth-grader belted a monster grand slam in the bottom of the first that was the spark for the Lady Bearcats' 8-1 win over 32nd District runner-up Simon Kenton Monday night in the opening round of the Eighth Region softball tournament at South Oldham High School.

Anderson moves on to play regional favorite Oldham County in the second semifinal tonight, Wednesday, May 30. Game time is 7:30 p.m. Oldham routed Owen County, 10-0, in 6 innings in the final first round game and is considered the regional favorite with a 32-6 record.

Currens turned on the first pitch senior Courtney Morgan offered and drilled it well over the fence in left-center to give Anderson a 5-1 lead.

Simon Kenton threatened in the third inning with two on and one out, but Currens snared Morgan's line drive, then doubled Jamie Draud off first to kill the rally.

Currens ended up with 2 hits and 5 RBI, perhaps her best night as a varsity player, but she was far from the only one with a big night.

After a shaky start with two errors and a passed ball leading to a run in the top of the first, Anderson settled to play air-tight defense. Molly Burkhead made two running catches, including a spectacular sliding grab to deny Morgan in the sixth, while Kelsey New was a vacuum at third.

Pitcher Madison Brummett gave up just 3 hits and struck out 4 in what may have been her best performance to date. Brummett was increasingly effective with her off-speed pitches in getting her first post-season victory.

Simon Kenton scored its only run when Morgan reached on an error, then courtesy runner Anna Telesz stole sec-

Webb will cheer for Big Blue

Dream comes true for Anderson cheerleader

By John Herndon
Sports editor

When she started cheering while in kindergarten, Jackie Webb has had one dream: Be on the sidelines yelling "Go Big Blue!"

Webb

Webb, who graduated from Anderson County High School on Tuesday night, recently learned that her dream will be coming true next fall as a member of the White cheering squad at the University of Kentucky. She will be cheering at football games, women's basketball and volleyball contests.

"My dream has always been to attend the University of Kentucky and cheer," Webb says.

The daughter of Tony and Karen Webb, Jackie got her start cheering in Anderson County Youth Cheerleading and was hooked.

"As long as I can remember cheerleading has been a part of my life,"she says. "My cheerleading career began in kindergarten with ACYC, cheering for my brother's recreational league basketball team. I also began gymnastics and loved it from the start. I joined Champions cheerleading in second grade and never looked back. I cheered for Champions All-Stars for 11 years. I cheered throughout middle school, and joined the high school team in seventh grade. During this time, I was on four teams."

Hayes leads Bearcats into semis

Anderson junior scores tying run, hits walk-off single

By John Herndon

SHELBYVILLE – Granville Hayes just wanted to get his bat on the ball.

Hayes stroked a one-out, bases-loaded single to score Tanner Roberts, giving Anderson County a 2-1 walk-off win over Owen County Monday night in the first round of the Eighth Region Tournament being held at Collins High School.

Hayes, who had struck out with the bases loaded in the third inning, drove Stone Osborne's 0-2 pitch to the right side of the infield. Owen could not make a play, setting off a wild celebration among the Anderson players.

"I didn't want to strike out again," Hayes said. "I just wanted to put the ball in play. I knew something good would happen if I just put the ball in play."

Anderson coach L.W. Barnes was not so sure. "I didn't really know. This game is such a tricky game."

But Roberts, who had reached

It was a sweet victory as Duncan had held on to the state's best time for most of the season. However, in the final week, Richardson had turned in a 42.28, meaning he would be seeded No. 1 at the state, not Duncan. They had raced against each other in the Tates Creek Invitational on April 27 with Duncan winning by a half-second.

"He's very fast and strong," Duncan said. "He's taller than me."

Duncan explained that a taller hurdler can basically can just step over the hurdles, 32 inches at the middle school level, instead of jumping.

Saturday, it was almost no contest as Duncan's final margin of 1.01 seconds is almost an eternity in track and field.

Connor says he plans to take a couple of weeks off and get right back to training. Winning the state at the middle school level already has him believing he can break through at the high school level.

Earlier in the day, Duncan had finished second in the 100-meter hurdles, turning in a 15.18, just behind Scott County's Ennis Peyton, who ran a 14.89. But the 300 is Duncan's specialty.

"It was incredible," Duncan said of his win and state record. "I can't describe it. I know I will never forget it."

His mother, Dawn Duncan, said watching her son earn the state's top prize was "emotionally overwhelming. I can't put it into words. I wanted him to get that record so bad."

Connor says he could hear his mother urging him on as he neared the finish line.

A year ago, Connor finished third in the 300 as a seventh-grader, with both who finished in front of him moving on to high school. "He said, 'I should win it next year,'" Dawn Duncan said. "I told him it doesn't always work that way."

But this time it did in a way few could have imagined.

KHSAA, said in an e-mail that the association leaves the decision up to the local tournament management but at state events they try to not not start after 11 or end after 1 a.m.

Granted, situations like the one that happened last Tuesday are rare, but I have, in the last nine years, covered two 11-inning baseball games and one 14-inning softball game in regional tournaments.

With over 250 high schools fielding athletic teams in Kentucky, you have to think a situation like the one last Tuesday occasionally happens, whether the culprit is a preceding 11-inning game, six overtimes or even a traffic jam, which I have seen cause late starts.

There is a rule (Bylaw 25, Section 1b) that prohibits scheduling games on four consecutive school days and tournaments routinely schedule around graduation ceremonies, as the Eighth Region did for Anderson Tuesday.

It would seem a provision prohibiting the start of a game after a certain time – say 9 p.m. – on a school night would be consistent with that spirit.

It needs to be addressed, and the sooner, the better.

After all, these are high school kids. They are still student-athletes.

at UK in recent years. Courtney Childers and Brittany Hudson have also been part of various UK teams. Webb will receive a $1,000 per year scholarship for being a member of the team.

Webb also noted that three of her coaches, Paul and Tanya Blackhurst and Jason Jeffries, all cheered at UK. She had also been attending clinics at UK and received an invitation to try out for the team last fall.

"I found out the final day of tryouts that I could finally call myself a University of Kentucky cheerleader," Webb said.

"Tryouts lasted four days, and the final day was in front of an audience and panel of judges. I was the second candidate called for the White squad, and couldn't contain my excitement! My dreams had finally come true of becoming something I had imagined ever since I can remember. I give all the glory to God, and couldn't be more honored to be able to call myself a University of Kentucky cheerleader."

Webb says her father is a UK grad and all of her family call themselves Big Blue fans.

She plans to major in dietetics with an eye on eventually going to school to become a physician's assistant. A 4.0 student in her high school years, Webb also received the UK Provost Scholarship, College of Agriculture Alfred Chambers Brent Scholarship, Anderson County Conservation District Scholarship, Distinguished Young Women's second runner-up and fitness scholarship, and the Jimmy and Joretta Russell Scholarship.

Webb begins practice in late June and will be on the sidelines when the Wildcat volleyball team opens the season in late August and when the football Wildcats host Kent State on Sept. 8.

Hunting and fishing with family always a blessing

I've never been a big television watcher.

I do enjoy sitting with my lovely wife Leigh when we have time to watch certain shows, and have always enjoyed watching most sports on the tube including a good NASCAR race. I typically don't watch much of anything live anymore since I can do all the recording, pausing and rewinding live TV with my satellite setup. I can also skip the annoying commercials.

Jeff Lilly
Columnist

I even enjoy certain outdoor shows but find most of them too filled with "perfect situations," "unrealistic hunts" and way too many commercials.

I have to admit there are a couple of shows that I do record and actually watch when I can.

I have enjoyed watching "Top Shot" and "Swamp People" both on the same cable network. I was saddened recently to read of the passing of one of the "swamp people." Mitchell Guist passed away on the swamp at the age of 47. Way too young in my opinion since I'm the same age.

One of the good things to come from this is that he left God's handmade southern Louisiana swamps doing what he loved, being on the swamp hunting, fishing and taking care of his people.

Prayers go out to the family and especially his brother Glenn as he copes with day to day life out there without his sidekick. Mitchell sure did like his smoked gar fish.

Speaking of family and doing what you love, the Lilly boys and a friend headed to West Virginia the second week of May after the Kentucky turkey season closed. The West Virginia turkey and trout days went pretty well as far as the trout. Everybody managed a few with Hunter catching his first big rainbow and his first gold trout.

Both were around 15 inches and caught from the same stream. He also managed to tag his first West Virginia jake turkey. Uncle Damon took a nice gobbler with a 10-Inch beard the first day we were there. We enjoyed the four days of outdoors and fellowship doing what we all love doing.

Quick shots

*Congratulations to our local Anderson County archery teams on their successes again this year.

*Free fishing weekend in Kentucky is scheduled for June 2-3. Get out and take yourself and the kids fishing on Kentucky waters that weekend without worrying about a license.

Do remember, however, that the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources main source of revenue is from the sale of hunting and fishing license so try and support them by purchasing the proper licenses.

Hunter Lilly displays his first West Virginia gold trout, caught on a hunting-fishing trip the second weekend of May.

Besides, who wants to only fish one weekend a year?

*Tickling and noodling season opens June 1 for all the "hand fishermen" out there. Of course most folks who make it a practice of shoving their upper arm and hand into the mouths of 20-plus pound fish will already know the date so this information is for those of you just taking it up. If there's anybody out there that wants their fishing story told let me know and maybe we can schedule a little fishing trip.

*Bullfrog season opened May 18th for all us folks who love a mess of frog legs for supper.

*Kentucky's spring squirrel season opened May 19 and closes June 15. Be prepared to harvest plenty of young tender varmints for the skillet this time of year. Be sure and get out of the woods and get your harvest processed as quickly as you can due to the heat. It won't take long for game to spoil in the June Kentucky heat.

*Check your calendar and schedule Aug. 16-18 if you or your children still need to complete a hunter education course before the fall hunting seasons arrive. The classes are at the Anderson County Sportsman's Club off Old Joe Road. Contact Bill Brown at 502-680-0175 or e-mail gmountjoy@win.net for more information. The course is free.

*As always, be sure and check all Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources rules and regulations before going afield.

Take and kid hunting and fishing soon.

See ya outside.

Pick right rig and bait to target type of catfish you want to catch

By Art Lander Jr.
Ky. Dept. of Fish & Wildlife Resources

Late May is a prime time to catch catfish from Kentucky's reservoirs, small lakes, rivers and farm ponds.

"The water is warming into the 70s and catfish are about to spawn," said Gerry Buynak, assistant director of the Fisheries Division for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "Beginning in late spring and throughout the summer, catfish settle into daily patterns and feed aggressively."

Kentucky's three most sought-after catfish species channel catfish, blue catfish and flathead catfish have slightly different feeding habits. Anglers must use the right bait, the proper rig and the correct presentation to catch each kind of catfish.

Fishing tackle is an important consideration. Many catfish anglers prefer a 6 1/2- to 7-foot medium to heavy-action spinning rod. They match it with a spinning reel spooled with 17-pound fishing line.

Circle hooks are growing in popularity among catfish anglers because most fish are hooked in the corner of the mouth. These hooks can prevent catfish from swallowing the hook. With circle hooks, an angler just needs to keep the rod tip up and start reeling. There is no need to set the hook.

The channel catfish (Ictalurus punctatus) is the most widely distributed catfish species in Kentucky. It thrives in ponds and small lakes. Channel catfish have bluish-silver backs, silvery sides and a whitish belly. They rarely exceed 30 inches.

Anglers must fish their baits on the bottom to catch channel catfish. That's because channel catfish are scavengers. They cruise the bottom, using their super-sensitive whiskers to detect the odors of live and dead prey.

The basic slip sinker rig is the best choice for bottom fishing. Tie a No. 2 circle hook onto an 18- to 24-inch leader. Tie the other end of the leader to a barrel swivel. On the line from the rod, thread a 1-ounce sinker, then tie the line to the other eyelet of the barrel swivel. Thread a plastic bead onto the main line between the sinker and the swivel to help prevent the sinker from damaging the knot that connects the main line to the barrel swivel.

Fish won't feel any resistance when they pick up the bait since the line will slip through the weight. Night crawler worms, shrimp, chicken livers or scented dough are excellent baits for channel catfish.

The blue catfish (Ictalurus furcatus) occurs naturally in the state's biggest rivers, including the Mississippi and lower Ohio. They also occur in Kentucky and Barkley lakes. Kentucky Fish and Wildlife biologists have successfully stocked these fish in smaller lakes around the state as well.

Anglers may confuse the blue catfish with a channel catfish. The most obvious difference is the channel catfish has a rounded anal fin; the blue catfish has a straight anal fin. Blue catfish are bluish-gray with deeply-forked tails.

Blue catfish tend to roam in loose schools. At night, dusk and dawn, they frequent the shallows; they move to deeper water during the day.

Popular baits for blue catfish include cut-up gizzard shad, bluegill or minnows. Anglers fishing small lakes use a float to keep bait suspended off the bottom.

Anglers fishing in big rivers typically use a three-way swivel rig. Tie one eyelet of the swivel to the main line. Tie a two-foot leader onto a hook, and then tie this onto the second eyelet. Finally, tie a two-foot section of line to the third eyelet and attach a weight. Anglers in big waters fish the edges of channels with this rig.

The third popular species in Kentucky is the flathead catfish (Pylodictis olivaris). It inhabits large rivers and reservoirs.

Flatheads are brownish to yellowish on top and have a yellowish to white belly. They have wide, flat heads and triangular tails.

Flatheads commonly reach 36 inches in length and can live for 20 years. Adults are solitary and inhabit deep, sluggish pools during the day. They move onto rocky shallows at night, often locating around deadfalls, rock piles and stumps. They only eat live fish. Creek chubs, shiners, shad and sunfish are good baits to use.

Catfish in Kentucky are big, abundant and found in every kind of water throughout the state. Remember, too, that June 2-3 are free fishing days in Kentucky. Anglers do not need a license this weekend.

Lady Bearcats have fun in sand on way to district title

By John Herndon
Sports editor

TAYLORSVILLE – Anderson County's softball team has had plenty of fun in the sand this year.

First was a spring break trip to Gulf Shores, Ala. Then, last week, it was fun in the sand of Taylorsville, Ky.

While Spencer County is not known as a vacation spot on par with the Alabama beaches, it was the perfect place for the Lady Bearcats to frolic on their way to the championship of the 30th District Tournament.

Anderson put more bunts in the sandy infield at Spencer than sun-bathers on the Gulf of Mexico. With the loose soil virtually killing bunts just a few feet from home plate, Anderson put four down for hits in the decisive seventh inning uprising when the Lady Bearcats scored nine times to beat Spencer County, 12-1, in the championship game last Wednesday.

None was more surprising than that of junior first baseman Hannah Searcy, the five-spot hitter in the Lady Bearcat lineup who had just missed hitting home runs in two earlier at-bats. Searcy put down a beauty to become the sixth straight Anderson batter to reach base in the seventh.

"Be sure to ask her about that bunt," Anderson coach Brian Glass said as Searcy prepared to talk with The Anderson News.

"That was the first time I had gotten one down," Searcy smiled, referring to her career as a power hitter. "I thought they were going to get me out." Instead, Searcy reached, eventually scoring when Kaci Currens reached on an error.

Anderson County's Anna Marie Hyatt scores on Bailey Curry's sacrifice fly in the fifth inning. Spencer County catcher Sydney Boatwright has no chance with the tag.

It was that kind of night for the Lady Bearcats, who were whooping, yelling and chanting, "We Are AC!" several times through the contest.

Then moments after Madison Brummett struck out Spencer's Emily Lykins to make Anderson's third district championship in five years official, left fielder Anna Marie Hyatt turned 12 somersaults – one for each run scored – through the outfield.

The demeanor was as obvious as a neon sign at a busy beach. "We have had some rough patches," Glass said. "We told the kids before tonight you have to play for each other. We are finally starting to understand that."

Last week, playing for each other was packaged with the obvious, such as Brummett bearing down every time Spencer threatened in the first six innings. The Bears got five runners in scoring position in the first five innings, but only plated one when Sam Barmore came home on Lykins' single in the fifth.

It was the the fundamentals of the diamond, such as when Searcy and Corrin Robinson smacked back-to-back doubles, followed by Currens' single in the fourth. Currens eventually went to second on an error, but the damage was done. Anderson had taken a 2-0 lead in the fourth.

And the subtle was a big part of the title, too. Robinson covered what seemed like as much ground as the Atlantic Coast. It wasn't quite that much, but Glass knew his freshman shortstop was a key factor as she flawlessly handled six chances in the final.

And there was junior third baseman Kelsey New showing that she was determined to have another championship she won as a varsity player in 2008, when she was a seventh-grader, and again in 2010. She constantly reminded her teammates of game situations and started what might have been the defensive gem of the night.

With runners on second and third and one out in the bottom of the second, New fielded Rachel Sibert's bunt, but instead of getting the easy out at first, but giving up a run, New caught Spencer's Katie McKinney napping off third. She fired to Robinson, who chased McKinney before throwing to catcher Bailey Curry, who made the tag.

Curry then rifled a throw back to Robinson, covering third, to tag Tara Sorrells to end Spencer's most serious threat of the night.

Anderson followed its fourth inning runs with another an inning later when Hyatt reached on an error, one of seven by Spencer, then eventually scored on Curry's sacrifice fly.

The Lady Bearcats broke it open in their final at-bat. The string reached 10 batters before one was retired. Curry got the big hit, a 2-run single that scored Missa Walker and Hyatt to make it 5-1. At that point, Spencer's players seemed resigned to the inevitable.

But in the first base dugout, the district celebration party was just beginning.

ond, went to third on Caitlin Turner's single, then scored on a passed ball. Only one other Pioneer runner, Turner in the fourth, reached third.

Anderson quickly erased the deficit as Anna Marie Hyatt led off the bottom of the first with a double, then scored when Bailey Curry smacked a two-bagger with one out.

With two down, Currens smacked her grand slam and the rout was on.

New and Hannah Searcy walked and Corrin Robinson reached on a fielder's choice to score ahead of Currens.

The Lady Bearcats got three in the third when Currens drove in Lexan Overby, running for New, who singled. Robinson scored on Katelyn Harrod's sacrifice fly, then Currens came home when Simon Kenton botched Missa Walker's bunt.

Anderson has now won six of its last eight games and stands at 19-15 heading into the semifinal.

Simon Kenton finished at 23-16.

Girls outlast Collins in 10-inning thriller

By John Herndon
Sports editor

TAYLORSVILLE – Madison Brummett had never pitched 10 innings in a varsity softball game before last Tuesday night, but after battling to a 7-4 win over Collins, she could only smile and say, "My arm feels great."

"It always feels a little better when you win," laughed Anderson County coach Brian Glass.

Especially when that win is in an elimination game of the 30th District Tournament and is against the same team that eliminated Anderson in the same round a year ago.

Anderson took advantage of numerous Collins defensive miscues to defeat the Lady Titans 7-4 in a 10-inning semi-final thriller at the 30th District Tournament at Spencer County High School.

An unofficial count by The Anderson News credited Collins with 10 errors leading to six unearned runs. Officially, Collins coach Jim Axline knew his team had far too many to beat an Anderson team that was playing well heading into the post-season.

"We thought we had gotten rid of that," Axline said. "Early in the season, we were having a lot of problems with errors but had not had them lately. (Anderson is) a good team and a good team will make you pay."

The Lady Bearcats did so in the 10th when the Collins defense committed two bases-loaded errors allowing three runs.

"That was what we wanted to do at the plate," Anderson coach Brian Glass said. "We wanted to get our bunts down on the ground and we felt our speed could force some errors."

Collins rallied from a 4-2 deficit in the bottom of the seventh, reaching Brummett for two runs. Down to the Titans' last strike, Amanda Buresh singled, scoring pinch runner Samantha Veal sending the game to extra innings.

But Brummett was at her best when Collins issued the challenge. Over the last three innings, she allowed just one base runner.

Glass said Brummett's work was indicative of the entire team. Molly Burkhead, Curry and Missa Walker all had two hits.

Burkhead made two difficult catches in centerfield to stop Collins rallies.

Burkhead got things started in the tenth with a one-out single, her second hit of the night. Bailey Curry followed with a single, then Collins pitcher Jeneca Thomas made one of her few mistakes when she plunked Hannah Searcy to load the bases.

Kelsey New reached on an error, but after Corrin Robinson struck out, Collins misplayed Kaci Currens' ground ball, allowing courtesy runner Mia Aldridge and pinch runner Katelyn Harrod to score.

Collins did not have another rally left in the arsenal, especially without starters, who had gone down with injuries late in the season.

Becca Mouser got Collins on the board in the bottom of the first driving in Bailey Rankin with a single, but Anderson pushed ahead with two in the second, when Robinson singled, then scored when Collins misplayed another ground ball from Currens into two errors, worth three bases.

"We wanted to beat them good. We didn't want to go out tonight," said New.

Case K's 14, gives up two hits in district final

By Josh Cook
Landmark News Service

SHELBYVILLE – There have been Ks throughout the Shelby County baseball team's lineup all season.

Wednesday night, though, there were Ks of a different kind.

That's because Anderson County senior pitcher Landon Case struck out 14 to lead the Bearcats to a 7-1 victory over the Rockets in the 30th District Tournament final at Collins.

It was Anderson's second straight district championship and the Bearcats' fourth crown in five years.

Case K'd (a K is the official notation for a strikeout in baseball) a baker's dozen plus one against a Shelby County lineup that included five players whose first name starts with the letter K while also giving up two hits and an unearned run.

"We got a good pitcher on a good night, and he didn't allow us to get any emotion, and we're a team that thrives on emotion," Shelby County Coach Bart Roettger said.

A lot of that had to do with Case, who threw strikes on 70 of his 102 pitches. Case had not thrown for about 10 days before getting four outs and a save in Tuesday's semi-final win over Spencer County, according to Anderson pitching coach Chris Copenhaver.

"He threw the ball well tonight," Copenhaver said. "He picked up where the left off last night."

Landon Case delivers in the district championship win over Shelby County. Case fanned 14 Shelby batters after getting another K in relief the night before.

"Hats off to him. A pitcher sets the tempo, and he didn't allow us to get in our tempo," Roettger said.

"Offensively we have to give ourselves a chance to win, and we didn't do that."

Case held the Rockets – who beat the Bearcats, 2-1, on April 24 – hitless until there was one out in the top of the sixth, when Moore and Dugle lined sharp, back-to-back singles.

Before that, Moore was the only Shelby player to reach base in the first five innings, both times on errors.

Case and Steven Watts combined to limit the opposition to three hits while striking out 29 in two games. "We've been here 14 years and I don't know if I've seen us pitch like that for two games in a row," Copenhaver said. "That's hard to fathom at any level."

Anderson had played past 12:30 a.m. the night before, but showed no after effects of the late game. Anderson coach L.W. Barnes was not worried.

"I felt that after winning the night before all the pressure was off of us, so I wasn't too concerned," Barnes said. "I just hoped they would give what they had and they did. I thought we took a great mental approach throughout the game."

The Bearcats (18-17) got off to a good start.

With the game an out old, Shelby starter Kam Bruner hit Case, the Bearcats' second batter, in the back with a pitch, and Tanner Roberts, who was running for Case, stole second and then scored on Sayre's 2-out double to deep left field.

After Brice Stockton reached on an error, Darrin Laswell's single up the middle scored Sayre. Anderson added another run moments later when Josh Brown, who was running for Stockton, came home on a passed ball.

Anderson added four more runs in the fifth.

Granville Hayes reached on a one-out error and Sayre singled to left before Stockton doubled to score both. After a pop out, Wesley Jorette's RBI-double – which chased Noonan – made it 6-0. Alex Payton greeted new pitcher Tyler Eades with a single to right to score Jorette.

In the sixth, after Moore and Dugle singled back-to-back moved up on steals, Dillon Boone became Case's 12th strikeout victim.

"I tried to get on top of my fastball, and my curveball was working real well tonight," said Case, who threw first-pitch strikes to 17 of the 28 batters he faced. "I knew I had them off-balance with that."

Shelby scored its lone run in the seventh. Nathan Hayes, one of the heroes of Tuesday's victory over Collins, became strikeout victim No. 13, but he reached first with one out on a dropped third strike.

He eventually scored on a couple of errors that spoiled the shutout for Case, who had given up the game-ending hit to the Rockets in April.

"I definitely wanted to get a little revenge after the walk-off hit. It was definitely on my mind," Case said.

Watts pounds zone in 'puzzling, dominating performance'

By John Herndon
Sports editor

SHELBYVILLE – The instructions to Steven Watts were simple: Just throw strikes.

The senior right-hander pounded like a prize fighter last Tuesday as Anderson County knocked Spencer County out of the 30th District baseball tournament at Collins High School.

Watts struck out 14 Spencer County batters and allowed just one hit as the Bearcats rolled to a 4-0 semi-final win. It was the fifth time in six years that Anderson had eliminated the Bears in district play.

"We just kept telling Steven to pound the zone," Anderson coach L.W. Barnes said.

It was apparent early what kind of night Watts would have when he struck out four Spencer batters in the first inning. After already fanning two batters, Watts whiffed cleanup hitter Hunter Herring, but the ball got past Anderson catcher Brice Stockton. Herring raced to first, putting runners on the corners, but Watts struck out his counterpart, Michael Vuick for four strikeouts in the first inning.

Spencer's only hit came when Austin Heilman, hitting second, ripped a single to right. Watts and reliever Landon Case shut the Bears down the rest of the way.

Watts lasted 5.2 innings, striking out 14, but also walking seven. Case got the last four outs.

But even though Watts was virtually unhittable – Spencer put only two balls in play in the first five innings – he was constantly in trouble with wildness. In the third inning, for example, Watts opened with 10 straight balls. After a visit to the mound by pitching coach Chris Copenhaver, Watts recovered to strike out the next three batters.

"To paraphrase assistant coach Ethan Smith, that was the most puzzling dominating performance you will ever see," Barnes said. "He just had problems with his command. To his credit, when he would screw up and walk the first two batters, he found a way to buckle down and shut them down.

"When he was throwing strikes, he was obviously pretty untouchable."

Both teams had endured nearly a 2.5-hour delay from the scheduled 8 p.m. start time, caused by an 11-inning thriller between Shelby County and Collins in the first game.

Anderson was never in serious trouble, scoring a run in the bottom of the second when Cole Sayre crushed a Vuick offering to the fence in left field, then eventually scored on Darrin Laswell's one-out single.

"Cole shifted into the DH role for two of the last three games and he has really stepped up and accepted that role," Barnes said.

Vuick pitched gallantly for the Bears, yielding five hits and four runs, only two of which were earned, but he was no match for Watts.

Anderson scored again in the fourth when Brandon Eliadis walked and Stockton was hit by a pitch. Eliadis eventually scored when Alex Payton drew a bases-loaded walk, but then Wesley Jorette, courtesy running for Stockton, raced home on a passed ball to make it 3-0.

"Alex Payton had what we call a quality at-bat in a few ways," Barnes said. "Seven or more pitches, drew a walk and got the RBI. He fought off a couple of tough pitches and being the old catcher that he is, he has a good grasp of the strike zone."

Watts finally tired in the sixth, walking two with two out.

But by then, Anderson was firmly in control and on the way to the Eighth Region for the 14th consecutive year, the longest streak in the region.

on a walk, easily scored the winning run.

Anderson is now 19-17 and has won four of its last five.

Roberts had gotten to third when Owen misplayed Shea Sparrow's sacrifice bunt, allowing Sparrow to reach on the Rebels' fourth error of the game. Roberts scooted to third while Sparrow wound up at second.

One out later, Osborne intentionally walked Landon Case, setting things up for Hayes.

Hayes, had been the man for the Bearcats, even though he had a tough start at the plate. After striking out in the first and third innings, the junior center fielder reached when Osborne hit him with one out in the sixth. Owen argued that Hayes swung into the pitch but after a consultation, the umpires ruled Hayes had been plunked.

He stole second then took advantage of a pair of passed balls to score with Alex Payton at the plate to tie things at 1-1.

"We were very fortunate tonight," said Anderson coach L.W. Barnes, who recorded his 300th win as a head coach. "We were able to take advantage of some of their mistakes, but we made some too. We were very fortunate."

Owen, the 31st District runner-up, finished the year at 19-13. Osborne, a senior right-hander, was outstanding. He gave up only 2 hits and struck out 8. Both Anderson runs were unearned.

But Anderson pitchers Steven Watts, the starter, and Case, who relieved in the sixth inning, were outstanding as well, even if not as dominant as they were in the 30th District Tournament on the same field.

They combined for a 3-hitter with Watts striking out 5 and Case fanning 4.

Owen reached Case for its only run when Case plunked the first batter he faced, Jarrod Ball. He eventually scored on Sonny Berry's single.

Anderson had had one other real threat before finally breaking through. The Bearcats had the bases loaded with no outs in the third but were unable to push anything across. "I was thinking I wanted to go hit my head against a wall," Barnes said.

Roberts had tried to score on a wild pitch Owen catcher Logan Lowe got the ball to Osborne in time to make the tag.

Owen was not mustering much offense either with only one base runner getting as far as third before Ball scored.

Anderson moves on to play South Oldham in the regional semifinal tonight, May 30, at Collins. First pitch is set for 8 p.m. South Oldham, the 29th District champ, defeated Walton-Verona, 3-0, Monday night.

"I know South will be solid. They are very well-coached," Barnes said. "They have a really good pitcher who is better than the one we faced tonight. We will have our work cut out for us."

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE

In order to comply with the orders of the Anderson Circuit Court and the Woodford Circuit Court, the Master Commissioner will sell the property described in the following actions on Thursday, May 31, 2012, at 11:00 a.m. in the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky. The property shall be sold to raise the amounts hereinafter set forth, together with interest and the costs of this action, and upon the following terms and conditions (unless otherwise indicated):

(1) At the time of the sale, the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten percent (10%) of the purchase price, with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. In the event the successful bidder elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner. The bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest and the rate of twelve percent (12%) per annum until paid in full.

(2) PLEASE NOTE: The real estate SHALL BE SOLD SUBJECT TO ALL city, state, county, and school real estate taxes, whether current or delinquent.

(3) Where the real estate has insurable improvements, the successful bidder shall, at his or her own expense, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on said improvements from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, to the extent of the Court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, at a minimum, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner or the appropriate Plaintiff. Failure of the successful bidder to effect such insurance shall not affect the validity of the sale or the successful bidder's liability thereunder, but shall entitle, but not require, the Plaintiff(s) to effect said insurance and furnish the policy or evidence thereof to the Master Commissioner, if it so desires, and the premium thereon or the property portion thereof shall be charged to the successful bidder as the successful bidder's cost.

(4) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon excepting easements and restrictions of record in the Anderson County Clerk's Office, and such right of redemption which may exist in favor of the United States of America or the Defendant(s), and any matters disclosed by an accurate survey and inspection of the property.
